

The Intelligencer.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 28.

A BRIDE'S ADVENTURE.—A few days ago the boarders at the Sprigg House were aroused early in the morning by the loud cries of a female, which emanated from the party open door of a bed-room on the third floor. Proceeding to the room, a young lady was found, who appeared in great distress, and from her statement we compile the following as the cause of it: The day previous she, in company with a young man, arrived in the city from some verdant spot in Ohio. Their purpose was to be united in the holy bonds of wedlock. After a large portion of the afternoon had been spent in searching for the clerk, preacher and others, the ceremony was performed, and the happy couple took a room at the Sprigg House. After tea the bride concluded to go shopping, as all newly married ladies like to. Her worthy husband could not go as he with several bon companions were enjoying themselves and making merry over the late wedding, so our young bride was forced to go by herself. Not being acquainted with the city and too bashful to ask for information, she soon lost her way, and it was after dark before she reached her hotel again. Proceeding to what she supposed to be her room, she soon retired for the night, being very tired and worn out by the unusual incidents of the day. It so happened however, she did not notice the number of the room she was in, but her key unlocking the door, she supposed all to be right. Now it appears that she had taken the room of a single gentleman who is well known for his thorough dislike of the fair sex. He, unconscious of the presence of a youthful bride retired at a late hour, and was unaware that the next bed contained a stranger, until he was awakened by the cries of his neighbor.

About daylight she woke and expected to find her dear husband by her side. She not finding him there, and seeing that the other bed was occupied, proceeded to investigate. But instead of her own William she found the features of our sour friend. Hence the cries and excitement. She was removed to her own room and there found her William, quietly sleeping off the effects of his night's carousal. Mutual explanations were given, and the happy pair departed for home, the bride declaring she would never put up at "one of them big taverns again."

NEW COUNTERFEIT.—A Cincinnati paper states that a number of counterfeits of the one-dollar Treasury note have recently been passed in that city. It says:

"Excepting a few discrepancies, the spurious note is an exact fac simile of a genuine bill. The general appearance of the bill is also very good. The green ink is of a somewhat lighter shade than that used on the genuine, and some parts of the note look scratchy and blurred. The figures 1 on the green scroll work on the lower right quarter of the note are printed in green, in the genuine they are white, the face of Chase, in the counterfeit, is badly effaced."

Our citizens should be on the alert for this bill, as our city may be flooded with them at any time.

SAVED AT LAST.—John Stephens was arrested last March in Berkeley county and charged with stealing horses. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to serve three years in the Penitentiary. While en route for this city in charge of the Sheriff, he managed to make his escape at Grafton. Last week he returned to the scenes of his former rascality, and succeeded in stealing a few more horses, but through the vigilance of Sheriff Smith he was again caught. He reached here yesterday and was handed over to Mr. Jones.

PERSONAL.—Rev. A. J. Hay, of Philadelphia, and pastor of one of the Baptist churches of that city, is here at the instance and request of the American Baptist Home Mission Board, preaching and visiting among the members and friends of that denomination with a view to determining the question of his becoming the permanent pastor of the Baptist Church of this city. He will preach again next Sabbath.

COMMITTED.—Toby Vance, a young man whose face is familiar to every one connected with police matters, was committed once more to that celebrated hotel kept by Mr. Lewis Jones, with a receipt in full for fifteen days' board. He went up this time for giving liquor to a soldier who was doing duty in the Second Ward Market House.

SUPREME COURT.—Yesterday was taken up with the argument in the cases of Mandamus against the Supervisors of Ohio county, seeking to require said Supervisors to levy for the payment of coupons attached to bonds issued by Ohio county, in the stock of the Hempfield Railroad Company.

THE WOUNDED CONVICTS.—Marks and Hughes, the two men who were shot while attempting to make their escape from jail, are still suffering from their wounds. They are, however, out of danger.

THE MARKET GUARD.—What is the guard stationed in the Second Ward Market House for? We noticed yesterday their only occupation seemed to be sleeping on the stalls or benches. Officers, attention!!

ACCIDENT.—A boy about ten years of age, named Wm. Sear, living at the corner of Fifth and Monroe streets, fell from the roof of the market house yesterday afternoon and broke his left arm.

GONE HOME.—The 38th Ohio regiment left here yesterday morning for Columbus, Ohio. They have been mustered out, and when paid will be disbanded. The regiment marched to Bellair.

THEATRE.—The attendance at the Hall since the advent of Mr. Raymond's company has been unusually large each night. The plays have been judiciously selected and admirably performed. Mr. Hamilton as Richelieu, Sir Harcourt Courtney and Richard III, has given evidence of a high order of talent. Mr. Raymond is well known to our community both as a manager and actor.

Miss M. E. Gordon as Parthenia, was all that could be desired. This lady has improved greatly since we last had the pleasure of witnessing her impersonations. The members of the corps generally are fully equal to all they undertake, forming decidedly the best dramatic force we have had in Wheeling for years. We are anxious for early performance of the drama of "The Streets of New York," one of the most successful productions of late days, having created a furore in New York, continuing through a period of several months. Its success throughout all the cities of the Union has been the same, realizing for its author unprecedented profits. We are told the charm connected with this play consists chiefly in the interest of its construction, the natural portraiture of the characters and the interest with which characters, seen by us in every-day life, are inserted. We opine a larger house even than any they have had as yet (if this is possible) will greet the first night of this great play.

This evening Mr. Raymond will, by request, appear in his great character of Asa Trenchard in the famous play of "Our American Cousin," as played by him with unprecedented success at Laura Keane's theatre, New York. This is the piece that was being acted the night our late lamented President was assassinated. We bespeak for it a crowded house.

RIVER INTELLIGENCE.—The river was still falling slowly yesterday. Business is very dull on the landing.

THE REVENUE is the regular packet for Cincinnati to-day.

After performing every other theatre Phalon's "Night-Blooming Cereus" is now performing the late theatre of war, Southern orders roll in continuously. There is a perfect union of sentiment between the two sections as regards this precious extract. Sold everywhere.

A RHYME AND REASON.—Ye whose heads are sprinkled with gray, No longer need look in dismay For wrinkles on your brow, For the Silesian Hensher of Hall Nature's hues will quickly recall And wreath you in smiles as you look once more At your mirror.

A CARD.

CHRONIC DISEASE.—By the term, chronic disease, is generally understood one that has lasted for some weeks and is not attended, generally, with febrile reaction. These cases exhibit but little tendency to recover when unaided, and many of them are not amenable to the common remedies. In all chronic diseases, when treated in season, can always be cured by proper means, but it requires time. And it would be borne in mind by every patient, that in the treatment of chronic diseases, perseverance is absolutely necessary. The physician who has quick cures made by the most skilled physicians. The fact that acute maladies run their course rapidly, and must be promptly checked lest they prove fatal, has been a great stumbling block in the way of both physicians and patients. In the treatment of chronic affections, and more injury has been effected, and more diseases fastened permanently upon the system, by the use of quick cures of this class of diseases, than by almost anything else. Time and patience, together with proper remedies, are always required in the medication of chronic diseases. It is gentle means that succeed best in most cases; the system will not stand up to excitation, consequently all medication should be mild and persistent, changing the abnormal condition of the system gradually, thus bringing it back to its original healthy standard. See Dr. Kiser's card in another column. Office hours from 9 to 12 A. M., 1 to 4 and 6 to 8 P. M.
